

The Fabric Year 2021

The Fabric Year, result of the cooperation between Groz-Beckert and The Fiber Year, in its seventh edition delivers insights into textile markets, taking a holistic approach from fibers to fabrics. The general idea is to bridge fiber and filament manufacturing with subsequent processing activities in knitting, weaving and nonwovens fabric production.

The current webinar from October 4/5 offered half-hour executive summary about latest developments during the first year of the pandemic and an outlook for what to expect for full-year 2021 split into knitting, weaving and nonwovens technology.

The digital event will be further enriched with Chinese subtitles and comments from upcoming INDEX exhibition in Geneva mid-October. Afterwards, the stream will be uploaded to Groz-Beckert media center and youtube.
